WHITE GIRL RESCUED FROM HOME OF NEGRESS

Lived There Nine Years Without Ever Being Permitted to See Daylight of Street.

TWO-YEAR SEARCH AT END

Infant Given Away by Mother, Now Society Woman, Taken by Dr. Maybee.

After a search lasting two years, Detective-Sergeant Wiley yesterday succeeded in fully establishing the identity of Anna Maguire, a nine-year-old white girl, who since she was two hours old has been living with an aged negro woman in the rear of 400 1-2 West Duval Street. The story of the little girl's life is a strange one and rather tragic.

She was born in the home of Clara Henley, 1206 St. Paul Street, her mother having been taken there to hide her trouble. When the child was but two hours old her mother gave her to the Henley woman's mother, making a signed statement that she was to be kept by the aged negress until she was twenty-one years old.

On Case for Two Years.
Two years ago Sergeant Wiley heard that a negro woman was bringing up a white child as her own in Jackson Ward, and he has been working on the case ever since. A few days ago he received more definite information, and yesterday he went to the old woman's house with Dr. W. J. Maybee, superintendent of the Children's Home Society of Virginia. She at first refused to give the child up, but was finally forced to do so, and Dr. Maybee took her to the Children's Home, where she will be kept until adopted.

The child has never been allowed beyond the negro woman's sight, and was never before on the street. No one was allowed to see her, and she never saw any one save the old negro and a few of the latter's friends, one of whom taught her how to read and to count. Sometimes she was allowed to see the alley, but never went further, and she never played with another child or saw one.

Brought Up in Ignorance.
The old woman broke completely down when told that she would have to give up the child. She had brought the little girl up as her own, and the latter never knew her real history. She was told that she was to go to see some other little girls, and convented to leave the old woman who for so long had cared for her.

Sergeant Wiley has discovered all the details of the girl's history and knows who her parents are. Her mother came here from Staunton, and three months after coming to Richmond the child was born. She was attended by a reputable physician, who advised that she be taken to a hospital. The young woman, afraid that some one would recognize her, refused to do this and went to the house in Jackson Ward. After the child's birth she went back to Staunton. She has since married and is said to be moving in society in a distant city. The father of little Anna is said to live in Richmond.

Had Never Been in Street.

When Sergeant Wiley and Dr. Maybee entered the house yesterday they found the aged negro woman and Anna in a small kitchen in the rear. Anna was playing a mouth-harp and the old woman was listening to the music. She nearly fainted when the officer learned her of his duty, and was hardly able to dress the child.

Anna is said to be an exceedingly pretty girl, with brown hair and fine brown eyes. She was amazed at the street cars and at the shop windows and, children, saw everything she had seen and she could read a little and that she could count up to twenty-five. But she couldn't go over twenty-five, she said, because she didn't know any more numbers.

"God bless you, honey," said the old woman as the child was led away, "and don't forget to say your prayers every night. And think of me sometimes, will you, Anna?" The old woman was shaking with sobs, and both the officer and Dr. Maybee were affected by the scene.

The girl was born on July 14, 1901. Anna Maguire is not her real name, but was given to her by the negro woman. What would eventually have become of her is hard to say, but she would in all probability have always thought herself a negro girl and have associated with negroes all her life. Had not Sergeant Wiley succeeded in finding her and establishing the fact that she was white, Dr. Maybee will make arrangements for her adoption as soon as possible.

The Supremacy of the Pianola Piano

There is no doubt that the Pianola Piano is the STANDARD PLAYER-PIANO OF THE WORLD. Although there have come into the field many imitators of the Pianola Piano, ITS SALES EXCEED ALL THE OTHERS PUT TOGETHER!

It is artistic—it alone has the METROSTYLE (which furnishes INTERPRETATION) and the THEMODIST (which picks out and accents the VEIN OF MELODY). The Pianola Piano has been adopted by leading universities, colleges and schools.

There is but one Pianola Piano—that is, there is but ONE PIANOLA—which is built inside of Weber, Wheelock, Steck, Stuyvesant and Steinway Pianos. It means IMMEDIATE MUSIC for every member of the family.

In no other instruments can you find the genuine Pianola—standard of the world.

The Steinway Piano Stands First
